

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Researching, writing and publishing a social history is a family project. This is not an exception. I would estimate that more than one hundred persons have contributed to the documentation presented in this book. Most are direct descendants of Thomas and Mary (Entriaken) Hibben and others are descendants of families related by marriage. Their willingness to share documentation and assist in the research has helped me to record many interesting stories about seven generations of Hibben descendants.

I am indebted to many individuals and will mention many, but am certain I will overlook others. To them, I apologize. I especially wish to thank several persons who have been so supportive over the five years this history has been compiled and written. Foremost, I am indebted to Graechen Becker Stewart and her sister, Virginia Becker, for their decade long research efforts in Pennsylvania, Scotland and England, searching for the early ancestors of the Hibben, Huey, Entriaken and Heron families. Graechen also was my sounding board, who always responded with advice and encouragement, and when editing, found ample opportunity to add commas! To my wife, Julie, I owe thanks for twice editing the entire book; for her patience, as she often waited at the dinner table while I finished a paragraph; for her understanding when left to attend a movie alone while I exchanged e-mail with a distant informant; and for staying at home alone while I was away on a research trip. And, I must mention Stuart Galloway Hibben who took time from his own research and writing to contribute documentation and invaluable editorial assistance. His extensive research into the life and multiple careers of Paxton Pattison Hibben has developed into a complementary, yet-to-be-published biography.
